

INTRODUCTION OF THE JUNIORS

Thelma Bunts is one of the best; she knows Geometry as well as the rest.

Mary Draper has won quite a name by writing essays and histories of fame.

Clarence Painter, known also as "Squirt," will fall, I think, for most any "skirt."

Tecumseh and Dewey Dalton, for brothers, take the cake; their loud and constant talking keeps the sleepest of us awake.

Our jolliest girl is Louise Whitt; of "Spaniards" and other things she knows quite a bit.

George Crowder can in argument excel, but then, he can do most anything well.

Margaret Kirkman is our "Cicero shark," and really, I believe, she thinks it's a lark.

One of our members we could not do without is Lillian Lowman without a doubt.

Next I must mention Junior Lyon; hang around with him if you want some good times.

Lelia and Della, known as "The Pikes," are two girls in the Class everyone likes.

Otis Spraker is known as a sheik, but I think you will find him really quite meek.

Virginia Runyon, as everyone says, charms her listeners whenever she plays.

Woodson Cummings waited for us; he helps us make a great deal of fuss.

Frances Mullins in looks is quite fair and whenever you want her she always is there.

Walter Wyatt, a farmer on the dot, of chickens and cows knows quite a lot.

Margaret Dyer is our artist and poet; soon, I will wager, the world will know it.

Next in line comes Lucille Byrd, whose laughter and chatter you certainly have heard.

One day when Tom Jordan spoke, every one laughed for they thought it a joke.

Ruth Jackson is little in size, but small people are often quite wise.

Lena Bones, our best sport, is in for athletics, no matter the sort.

Blanche Whitaker, we like her so much, she slips through so easy, is never "in Dutch."

Sherwood Vaughan is one of our best, but then, you know, so are the rest.

Of course you have heard of Judson Harris; do not speak to him often or he'll be embarrassed.

Kathleen Hurst has the cross-word puzzle craze; she has worked them so much we are all in a daze.

We all have great hopes for our "Junior Class Baby;" Hurst Owen will fulfill them too, maybe.

Clara Nelson is certainly all right; she knows her lessons without studying all night.

Next in line is Charlie Gatewood; he plays tricks on the teachers no one else ever could.

Mary Boyd, our star who is never outclassed; on French she cannot be surpassed.

William Thomas, alias "Tom Toddy," is frequently described as all head, no body.

Ansell Derrick, the brightest of boys, can study and learn without making much noise.

So timid and shy is Inez Weeks that the whole room jumps whenever she speaks.

Dean Creger is really so witty, that we cannot have him always is really a pity.

Carson Dalton, next in the row, has proved to us that knowledge can grow.

Elva Runion is our new class-mate; her history further I am unable to relate.

Another new member is David Kent; not much time with us has he spent.

After reading about us, I am sure you have a "hunch" that this Junior room is surely some "bunch."
